April is... National Minority Health Month

National Minority Health Month is designed to highlight and express the need for improvements in health outcomes for racial and minority groups. Minority Health Month is also a time to encourage action through health education and early detection.

Diversity Month

Every year since 2004 April is Recognized as Diversity Month. It is important to recognize, honor, and celebrate all individuals regardless of gender, race, ethnicity, or sexual orientation. Diversity is important when it comes to understanding and connecting with one another.

Did You Know?

The National Minority of Health Month theme this year is Give Your Community a Boost!

Stress Awareness Month

Stress awareness month recognizes different kinds of healthy ways we can cope with stress to help live a healthy and positive life.

Remember, we all experience stress but we may experience it in many different ways.

For more information regarding these programs, please email outreach@cornerhealth.org or subscribe to our calendar here

Meet Hogan LePore Our Communications & Media Coordinator!

Hogan LePore joins the Corner after spending time with the Eastern Michigan University and George Mason University communication departments, respectively. Hogan earned his bachelor's degree from George Mason and is finishing up his master's at EMU. LePore will help the Corner with its outreach & communication efforts, including content creation.

In late March, LePore produced a staff spotlight video for National LGBTQ Health Awareness week!
